WEDDED AT MONTROSE.

Jerry Wilbur Beach and Miss Jennette Ayers Taylor are united. A Pretty Home Wedding.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Montrose, Pa., Sept. 8.—It was shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon when Jerry Wilbur Beach and Jennette Ayers Taylor were united in marriage by the Reverend Doctor A. L. Benton.

The last strains of the wedding march were heard in the vestibule of the house where the happy ceremony was performed. The bride and groom were dressed in the most elegant and becoming manner.

The bridesmaids and ushers, Messrs. Sidney J. Jencks, Norman Stewart, Robert E. Beebe and Harry E. Cooley, formed the background for the principals of this happy event.

The bride's gown was of white organdy, over white tulle, relieved with bows of white ribbon, and chiffon and trimmed with valenciennes lace.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Taylor, on South Main street, is an ideal one, and the wedding was held in the parlour of this beautiful home.

After the ceremony, a splendid refreshment was served to the guests, who were but few in number, the relatives and immediate friends of the family only being numbered among the wedding guests.

Miss Taylor is a daughter of Mr. James P. Taylor, one of the owners and editors of the Montrose Independent Republican. Mr. Beach is the only son of Henry L. Beach, president of the First National Bank of Montrose.

Among those present from out of town were: David Ayers, Wilkes-Barre; Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Beach, Binghamton; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Beach, Apalaccon; Misses Natalie and Bessie Ayers, Wilkes-Barre; Mrs. Harry Stoddard, Wilkes-Barre; Mr. William S. Binghamton, New York; Miss Nellie Bettyler, Wilkes-Barre; Mrs. William Howarth and Mrs. Myles Stevens, Pittston; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keeler, Binghamton; Miss Margaret Montgomery, McEvensville, Pa.; Miss Nancy Hoskins, 433 1/2 Scranton Boulevard; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hattie McKenzie, Binghamton.

Mr. and Mrs. Beach left on the evening train for an extended eastern trip, amidst showers of rice, good wishes and all that constitutes a wedding.

After Sept. 24 they will be at home in Montrose.

DIED FROM STARVATION.

Joseph Reese, of Plymouth is Found Dead in Bed.

Wilkes-Barre, Sept. 8.—Joseph Reese, who had a small shop in which he sold candy and the like on West Orchard street, Plymouth, was found dead in bed at an early hour this morning, and subsequent developments reveal that he died from neglect and starvation.

Reese was a bachelor, 53 years old, and lived practically the life of a recluse. His health had been failing and his neighbors frequently carried in articles of food. This morning he did not throw open the door of his little shop at the usual hour and an investigation was made which resulted in the discovery of his dead body lying on the couch in his narrow quarters.

It is said, by the Times, that many years ago Reese—then a good looking young man—fell in love with a young woman who returned his affection and they were to be married. Time passed and they looked forward to their wedding day with happy anticipations.

Through the prospective bride met one whom she thought more of than she did of Reese and the latter was cast aside. During the years that followed Reese each year took less interest in life and

HORSELESS CARRIAGES FOR MONROE COUNTY

Scheme of Stroudsburg Capitalists to Construct a Bicycle Path and Run Conveyances Over the Old Delaware Valley Electric Railway Roadbed.

Stroudsburg, Sept. 8.—Horseless carriages are soon to be introduced into Monroe county by a company of local capitalists, who will also construct a bicycle path from East Stroudsburg to Bushkill. A Times man learned today that a scheme of no mean importance to the eastern end of this county is now under consideration with every prospect of its coming to a successful issue.

What the scheme is will be learned from the following paragraphs. A party of Bushkill residents finding there is little prospect of a railroad ever being built between East Stroudsburg and Bushkill, conceived a plan to bring several horseless carriages to this county and operating them between the borough and Pike county. The gentlemen who are to form the company are Edwin Peters, Harry Peters, J. S. Schoonover and Dr. Barry, all of Bushkill. Messrs. Lederer and Strauss, the former owner of Forest Park hotel, and the latter owner of the Stevens House, New York, and an artist of world-wide repute, Mr. Harry Herzog, of Philadelphia, have been secured as investors. They have secured a party of money, each of them and will spend it liberally to push their ideas to a successful issue.

The company proposes to secure the old road bed of the Delaware Valley Electric railway, which is graded within three miles of Bushkill, construct a bicycle path on the same and also to put into operation a number of horseless carriages, to hold parties of six, eight and ten, and run them between East Stroudsburg and Bushkill and later to Port Jervis. Messrs. Lederer and Strauss are now in communication with a committee has been appointed to negotiate for the old road bed.

The company expect the carriages to make the trip in about a half hour. In regard to the bicycle path, which is in itself a great scheme, a small toll will be charged. This ought to pay at least for the maintenance of the thousands of bicyclists that pass up and down during the spring, summer and autumn.

EDITOR OF THE LIQUOR EVIL.

She is One of the New Woman Kind and Means to Reform Things.

From the Chicago Post. "Helen!" The managing editor of the future spoke sharply. She was evidently angry. "Yes, not at all," she replied, "I am sorry, quickly responding to the summons. Write a note to Miss Doolittle, telling her that we will dispense with her services in the local room in the future."

"Yes, ma'am," "She is drinking too much," explained the managing editor. "I am sorry for her poor father, who is a widower and has to depend on her for support, but I can't help it. She will have to go."

"I'll do it at once, ma'am." "This liquor evil is becoming a very serious matter," continued the managing editor. "I don't know why you blame those poor men out in Kansas who have been holding prayer meetings in the street in an attempt to break up the saloon business. They are taking good chances of insult, though, not to place for men. I don't see what their wives are thinking of to let them do it. We'll have to have a good special on the subject before long."

"Meanwhile," continued the managing editor, coming down to business again, "tell Mrs. Slasher that I want a good stiff editorial on the women who persist in going out between the acts of a girl or get a clove. It's an insult to the gentlemen they take to the theatre."

"I have that, ma'am," said Helen, looking up from her note book. "What else?" "Leave a note for Mr. Prattyman about his society. Twice recently he has made the mistake of referring to Mr. and Mrs. Jones, instead of Mrs. and Mr. Jones, as every one knows it ought to be. It's inexcusable."

"Then tell the city editor that I want a good interview with Mrs. Margin, the president of the board of trade, on the slump in wheat. There ought to be a good story in the fact that the bond was badly squeezed and that Jennie Plunger made so much that she blew in $200 or $300 celebrating with the girls on the board of trade and squared herself at home by buying her husband a diamond ring and a sea skin coat."

With a wave of the hand the editor of the future dismissed her private secretary and gave her attention to an editorial on "The Absurd Claims of the New Man."

Rapid Reading.

"That is just like a woman—reading the end of a novel first. It seems to be the nature of a woman to jump at a conclusion." "She didn't jump in this case. I skipped,"—Indianapolis Journal.

Might Be Overlooked.

"I would not marry a woman who did not know how to love her husband." "Oh, I might overlook a little thing like that, if she had money enough to pay my board,"—Indianapolis Journal.

TROUT 50 CENTS A POUND.

Fish Pond to be Opened in Connection with the Trout Hatchery Near Kregsville, Monroe County.

From the Bethlehem Times. An association composed mainly of Mauch Chunkers—Walter Liesenring, president—purchased some years ago about 1000 acres of forest near the junction of Wild and Hell creek, in this Monroe county, for the purpose of establishing a trout hatchery. The tract includes the well known hostility of the Sobrings, and not far distant are the lands owned shortly after the war of independence by Gen. Craig, of revolutionary fame. Its location is five miles northwest of Kregsville, Monroe county, or seven to eight miles north-northeast from Seiberling's Hotel on the Wire Ridge, a point frequently visited by the Mauch Chunkers of good chicken or turkey supper.

It is as wild and romantic a spot as can be found in Pennsylvania, and except that the original forest trees are gone very little change has taken place in the surroundings for the past fifty years. This location was chosen on account of the absence of settlers, the unequalled purity and coolness of the waters, and especially on account of the great springs flowing out of the rocky hill named Balfie's Kitchen, assuring a perpetual supply of the purest water that can never be contaminated. Besides these springs, whose waters are led for long distance in an underground conduit to the hatchery, the grounds are watered by Wild, Hell, and Cross creeks. Some native wild animals are still found in the neighborhood, and foxes have been recently trapped and confined on the grounds, and a black snake and an ancient rattler of seven inch girth have recently been dispatched.

The whole enterprise is under the capable management of Nathan R. Butler, a native of Lancaster county, Pa., whose long experience in the hatcheries in the United States and of the Pennsylvania State hatchery at Pennsylvania has made him an expert in this line. Under his management an extensive hatchery has been established, including hatching houses, pools, ponds, dams, spawning races, etc. The pond named Balfie's Kitchen, which has been sold for food and stocking purposes, in March, 1896, there were hatched out on the premises 600,000 trout. About 30,000 of this hatchery are now on sale, many of them weighing half a pound apiece. The pond is enclosed in a pen about 60,000 fish, and to see the multitude rushing for food cast into the pool is a sight of rare interest. The price of the fish has averaged 75 cents a pound.

From October to Christmas is the spawning season, and as fast as it is taken from the fish it is sold for breeding purposes. Later in the season, say in December, whatever spawn is retained for hatchery purposes on the premises is set to hatch the young fry appear. In most other hatcheries the fish appear in less time, but here the low temperature of the water protracts the time very much. Mr. Butler expects to be able to hatch out 1,000,000 fry in the spring of 1898. For that reason extensive preparations are being made to accommodate fishers of trout, men or women, and a special pond of 2-3 acres is now being enclosed and stocked with fish for the exclusive use of the women visiting the hatchery. Mr. Butler expects to accommodate the public next season, to furnish board and lodging at reasonable rates and permit fishing at the reserve at the rate of 50 cents a pound for all fish caught.

STOCKING STREAMS.

Mr. Butler maintains that the method used in the Pennsylvania state hatchery to stock the public streams of the State with trout are faulty and unsatisfactory. Every season millions of fry are put into the streams and every season comparatively meagre results are obtained therefrom. Experiments recently made by Mr. Butler in stocking streams on North Mountain, near Wilkes-Barre, Hickory Run, Drifton, Saw Mill Creek, near Weisport and Pea Beck, N. J., have resulted in the greatest satisfaction to the owners. Instead of stocking the streams with small fry, fish four to six inches long were used. Such fish are old and strong enough to defend themselves against their innumerable natural enemies.

Thanks Were Premature.

During the rebellion the 19th Maine acquired a reputation for foraging the country so thoroughly that they were said to have starved the confederacy out in case they were ever to be driven into the fat of the land as usual. Another troop was ahead, and between the 19th and the General Grant's. As the general was passing one plantation the proprietor came out and hailed his party.

"General," said he, "I want some sort of safeguard. The troops that have just gone by stole my pigs, lifted my hen roost and emptied my corn bin. I am very sorry, but I can't help it."

"Yes," continued the old man, "they stole everything but my hope of immortality. That God, none of them can steal that."

"Don't be too sure of that," retorted the general; "the 19th Maine is coming next."—San Francisco Argonaut.

THE MARKETS.

New York, Sept. 8.—Food's stock market was very irregular but it was much less under manipulation than for over a week past and the general tone was one of strength. There was realization on a large scale all day, but the offerings for this purpose were more notably absorbed. The wheat market was particularly active, with several large lots being sold by sectional jumps to stimulate buying of these realizing offerings, a condition in marked contrast to the invariable rule for many days past. The course of the market was downward at the opening, the international and Grangers leading, in sympathy with the decline in American markets on the London exchange. Strength developed in a number of stocks which stemmed the decline and carried prices to the best of the day. Profit-taking at the close caused the loss of part of the gain. Total sales were $97,000 shares.
